MERIDIAN FOSTERS IMPRESSIVE AWARD COLLECTION FOR DSP9 LOUDSPEAKER WITH NY PRODUCT DESIGN AWARD

The Meridian DSP9 loudspeaker has once again achieved success for its product design excellence, this time at the New York Product Design Awards. Achieving the Gold Award for Audio & Video Devices: Speakers, Meridian's design signature has maintained its elite status amongst designers, design teams, and manufacturers from all over the world.

“It is fantastic that the DSP9 is gaining the global recognition and praise that it deserves. We humbly accept this award from the New York Product Design Awards,” states Katy Bradshaw, Global Marketing Director at Meridian. “Our expert engineering that powers the DSP9 loudspeaker is only half of its innovation, it is also the seamless design signature encasing the technology.”

The New York Design Awards honours the efforts of global designers, design teams, and manufacturers to create complete product design excellence. It is an International Awards Associate (IAA) competition, uniting creators with industry innovators, designers and professionals in a collective commitment to advance the design industry in a celebration of talent. Meridian graciously accepted the Gold New York Product Design Award for the Audio & Video Devices: Speakers category, bestowed by members of the industry-leading IAA Judging Council. This latest accolade elevates the global visibility of the Meridian brand in the design world.

As the second loudspeaker released from the company's Extreme Engineering Programme, Meridian's DSP9 loudspeaker unites years of industry experience with the latest innovative technology. Delivering a seamless design signature, the DSP9 is sculpted by engineering experts, with a specially curated curved exterior that minimises unwanted sound diffraction from the drive units. Advanced engineering has shaped a three-dimensional space within the cabinet to deliver enhanced performance, and special techniques to ensure maximum sonic fidelity. The combination of visual and technical strategies delivers a completely seamless sound experience.
